"Giving Credit where Credit is Due"

How to turn your work experiences into a college degree?

A. CREDIT BY ACCELERATION EXAM

We use standardized exams, proficiency assessment and other general aptitude test battery. If you pass the test, we shall confer you the degree the same day you took the exam.

B. CREDIT BY WORK EXPERIENCE

We give merits to the prior experiential learning (or self-taught learning) of the student: professionally or personally.

A degree, however, is awarded only if the acquired work credentials are equivalent to what would have been taught in a college level course and the student has sufficient, verifiable and demonstrable academic knowledge and technical skills supporting his/her claim.

"Experience is the best teacher"—Frances M. Wiltcher

On May 10, 1996, for instance, the former President Fidel V. Ramos, signed into law Executive Order 330 or the "Expanded Tertiary Education Equivalency and Accreditation Program".

"Chance favors the prepared mind" —Louis Pasteur

Said E.O. 330 "recognized that education and the acquisition of higher expertise are processes that also take place in the world of work and beyond the confines of the classroom as exemplified by the Philippine Educational Placement Test (PEPT), the distance education programs of pioneering higher education institutions (HEIs), and the Dual Training System."

By adopting the principles of E.O. 330, you may be conferred a college degree based on your work experiences, past schooling, training, etc. provided that you have earned the required number of hours on a degree program you are applying for. For example:

1). If you are applying for Associate's Degree, you need 1,728 hours worth of work related experience, training / seminar, etc. (i.e., an equivalent of 96 units [or 32 subjects] x 18 weeks = 1,728 [+ 3 units of research (54 hours) = 99 units] class hours on a traditional class room setting).

2) If you are applying for Bachelor's Degree, you need 2,160 hours worth of work related experience, training / seminar, etc. (i.e., an equivalent of 120 units [40 subjects] x 18 weeks = 2,160 + 6 units of research (108 hours) = 126 units] class hours on a traditional class room setting).

3) If you are applying for Master's Degree, you need 810 hours worth of work related experience, training / seminar, etc. (i.e., an equivalent of 45 units [15 subjects] x 18 weeks = 810 + 9 units (162 hours) = 54 units] class hours on a traditional class room setting).

C. CREDIT BY MATRICULATION

If you are not interested to get your degree via "option a" or "option b" you can also do "option c": you enroll, study, pass all the requirements online then graduate. For more inquiries please visit our website:
